Q.2c) "one cannot communicate".

This sentence says that there is no way one can communicate. We can communicate through words, through eyes, silently and many other ways. Communication is the way of communication depends on with whom we are communicating, the environment in which we are able to talk. Silence may be an implicit message to the others. One cannot reply in a silent communication, though it is communicating too. This shows that you have communicated something no matter what it was of lack of interest or lack of confused about something or else ignored. We can explain this with an example: Have you ever experienced that your friend has went through a bad exam and he is in bad mood, and will you wish to go and have a funny talk?

Not probably. No, because he is in a tensed mood and you would like to make his mood better rather than making him angry. You can sure that you too have experience this following experience.

Hence, we can say that no matter what at which phase of life you are or at which situation you are, communication always plays an important role to build relations and it makes its own paradigm
