Q. 2c

→ "One cannot not communicate." All behaviour is a form of communication in and of itself. Any perceivable behaviour, including the absence of action, has the potential to be interpreted by other people as having some meaning.

Everything one does is a message, even when we do nothing, verbally or non-verbally, we are transmitting something: "Activity or inactivity words or silence all have a messaging value: they influence others and therefore, in turn, cannot respond to these communications and are thus themselves communicating". ~~"One cannot not"~~ Even being silent is a way of communicating some kind of message. So it is impossible to not to communicate. Non-communication doesn't exist. It does not apply imply that what we are communicating must be understood by the other.
