Q.2

(c)

'One cannot not communicate.'

According to this there is no way one cannot be communicate. we are always communicating; even the silence send out a message. verbal or non-verbal, even the lack of action sends a message. Silence may be an implicit message to the other. One cannot respond is a communication, though this is communication too. Non-verbal action send a message too. For example, one can nod to confirm an action. This has a message value too. Or cannot not respond to this communication it's a way of communicating too.
