Q.2C "One cannot not communicate", it is a well known adage which means there is no way one cannot communicate. Our every behaviour is a form of communication. We are not communicating to any one is also a communication. It sends a message of that "we don't want to communicate right now". Verbally or non-verbally we are transmitting something. So the Non-Communication doesn't exist. It does not imply that what we are communicating must be understood by others. Silence or Voice, activity or inactivity we are sending a message to the receiver.
